Lecturer in International Business

Permanent, full-time position

Salary: £37474 to 342155

The School of Management is a leader in business education, research and knowledge transfer with more than 50 years' experience of pushing the boundaries, regionally, nationally and internationally. As a recognition of its outstanding achievements in UK Higher Education, the School of Management was awarded the Times Higher Education Business School of the Year 2021. The School of Management is also part of an elite group of Business Schools worldwide possessing triple-crown accreditation from AACSB, AMBA and EQUIS. We perform well in the Financial Times (FT) rankings and continue to build on our research strengths following a strong performance in REF 2021.

The award winning School of Management has embarked on a period of positive change, growth, and investment, providing a rare opportunity to shape our vision "to empower and provide inclusive opportunities which enable people to make a difference to community." In doing so we are now seeking to nurture new talent within the School. You will be contributing to high-quality management education and research, tailored to meet the needs of evolving business landscape and shape the world we live in.

We are looking for an enthusiastic and motivated individual who can join us as Lecturer in International Business and make significant contributions to the implementation of our research, leadership, learning and teaching, and business and community engagement strategy in the department of International Business, Marketing and Strategy.

You will have a PhD in a relevant discipline, and will be joining the International Business, Marketing and Strategy Department within the School of Management. You will contribute to the Department's continuing success through quality research output, delivering an excellent learning and teaching experience to our students, and taking on strategic leadership roles during the tenure of your employment. Along with teaching responsibilities, you will maintain an excellent research track record of publishing high quality (3/4*) research papers in refereed journals and the capacity to capture grants to support the School of Management's reputation. You may also be expected to contribute to the distance learning degree programmes at the School of Management.

The School of Management is an equal opportunity employer which welcomes applicants from all backgrounds and supports an inclusive work environment for its staff. The School is committed to providing a supportive and developmental environment to all staff through mentoring by experienced academic colleagues and maintenance of effective personal development plans and processes. Additionally, you will progress your career under our Bradford Academic Framework.

For informal enquiries about the above position, please contact Prof. Richard Nyuur, Head of the Department of International Business, Marketing and Strategy at r.b.nyuur@bradford.ac.uk or Dr Natalie Wilmot, Deputy Head of the School of Management at n.v.wilmot@bradford.ac.uk
